

Legal clauses

The whole of this website is under Moroccan and international law with regard to royalties and copyright.

Those who want to visit the website <http://latelierduvoyagemaroc.com> are obliged to accept and respect the following conditions of use which we reserve ourselves the right to modify or update at any time.

In case you do not agree with all or part of the conditions of use mentioned hereafter, you are advised not to use this website.

The general presentation of the website is original and also protected. You are therefore not authorized to reproduce the HTML code of the server's pages for the purpose of public diffusion. The website can be accessed 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, except in a case of force majeure or of an event beyond our control as well as possible breakdowns and maintenance operations necessary for the smooth running of the website.

Information collected from people by means of forms is exclusively used for the purpose indicated: subscription to a newsletter, free advertisements etc...

You have every right to access, modify, change and delete all nominative information that concerns you. To do so you should send an email to our webmaster's address: contact@latelierduvoyagemaroc.com.

Documents presented on the website are supplied 'as they are' without any express or tacit guarantee ; the website may present technical or typing errors or mistakes which you recognise and accept by using the site.

We cannot be held responsible for errors or omissions presented on the website or for any referenced document. Information on the website is non-contractual and subject to modification without warning. Our website suggests links to others. The addresses of these websites are regularly checked ; they are not part of our website. We have no control over their content and decline all responsibility with regard to information they present.

We cannot be held responsible in case of contamination of the computer equipment of internautes resulting from the spreading of a virus or other computer infections. As website user, it is your duty to take all appropriate measures in order to protect data and/or software from contamination by possible virus' circulating on the net.

The use of the present website is under the sole responsibility of the internaut who assumes all risks that may arise.

In accordance with the law, the website has been the object of a declaration of automatic processing of nominative information. Personal information that any internaut might give us for use by the website services or any other offer that we put on line, are subject to the provisions of computer Law.

We will in no circumstance take responsibility for any damage, direct or indirect, whatever it may be, that may result from the use of information presented on our website. All information is given as an indication only.

Copyright © L'atelier du voyage Tous droits réservés.

